

The X38 vikky Essay

By K.T.

What isn't there to say about X38 vikky? Based on my impression of them, they're a maestro in the art of Karate. As of the writing of this essay, they're on the way to achieving their black belt, a quite prestigious honor after twenty-five years of training. Keeping with their love of Karate, they've earned a master's degree in Asian studies from the University of Ohio in 2012. With this degree, they've scored a job at MasterCard Customer Support where they answer the phones for 12 hours a day.

From my limited understanding of vikky, they're currently in a sapphic relationship with someone. This "someone" would know that their favorite food is a gallon of red bull and a single graham cracker, for which they consume ritualistically every hour on the hour. Whilst eating this, frankly, fantastic concoction, they love watching House M.D., although they are apprehensive to laugh at Hugh Laurie due to recent statements his actor made. Their favorite character in the show is Dr. Cuddy for constantly being a pain to Dr. House.

They despise Israel, the Trump administration, Palantir, Microsoft, Ronald Reagan, and Diabetes. All very commendable things to hate, no doubt. In fact, if they had their way, they would immediately appoint  97 p14y3r_1 to the U.S. presidency with 100% confidence in their ability to fix everything. All they would ask in return is to be compensated with an annual salary of 2 million USD. For which they would spend the majority of it on lavish trips aboard the RMS Queen Mary 2. In fact, they would retire on the ship itself and be given a dignified service via the crew throwing them into the ocean at the young age of 117.

Alright, I'm out of ideas. I hope you enjoyed this!
